The problem i having is it seems that the engine seems to be struggling (i think due to all the extra weight and the larger tyres) and fuel economy is shocking. I am pretty new to suzukis so i was thinking to converting to a v6 h25a engine (or something better) or is there something you can do to the j20a engine to give it that more power.

The Engine Failure Thread [Archive] - Club SX4

The J20A engine is built very strong and reliable and could quite easily withstand a lot of power increases; however, tripling the horsepower is a whole different story. The J20A, I would say, is an engine with a "neutral" design - that is, its design is not strongly biased in any particular direction.
