Science and religion: Reconcilable differences With the loud protests of a small number of religious groups over teaching scientific concepts like evolution and the Big Bang in public schools, and the equally loud proclamations of a few scientists with personal, anti-religious philosophies, it can sometimes seem as though science and religion are at war.

Science and religion: Reconcilable differences

Review of Science and Religion: A Very Short Introduction. There's got to be something deeply wrong with this conclusion. Indeed, it shows, clearly, I think, that the whole "field" of Science and Religion is misconceived from the start. It is built on the assumption that there are two different sources of knowledge,...

History of the concepts. The concepts of "science" and "religion" are a recent invention: "religion" emerged in the 17th century in the midst of colonization and globalization and the Protestant Reformation, "science" emerged in the 19th century in the midst of attempts to narrowly define those who studied nature.

Relationship between religion and science - Wikipedia

One way to distinguish between science and religion is the claim that science concerns the natural world, whereas religion concerns both the natural and the supernatural. Scientific explanations do not appeal to supernatural entities such as gods or angels (fallen or not),...
