Recetas Veganas/ Vegan recipes James Zimmerhoff, 2017-10-18 El veganismo del inglés veganism es la práctica que rechaza la utilización y consumo de todos los productos y servicios de origen animal A quien practica el veganismo se le llama vegano o vegana El término veganismo fue acuñado en por Donald Watson con el objetivo de distinguir el vegetarianismo simple no carne del vegetarianismo estricto no productos animales por razones éticas Más tarde aparecieron otras definiciones Los principales motivos que llevan a la adopción del veganismo son típicamente rechazan el consumo de todo producto de origen animal por respeto a los demás animales como seres sintientes Además de seguir una alimentación vegetariana estricta o pura también extienden dicha filosofía a todos los ámbitos de sus vidas y se oponen al uso o consumo para cualquier propósito de animales o productos de origen animal Esta elección puede provocar un bajo interés en el conocimiento de los aspectos nutricionales Asimismo el veganismo no evita la muerte y el sufrimiento de los animales existe una gran sensibilidad hacia los animales domésticos pero el enorme impacto negativo sobre los animales silvestres de las técnicas agrícolas necesarias para sustentar las dietas veganas se vuelve invisible y poco emotivo ver siguiente punto Por otro lado muchos descubrimientos realizados durante los últimos años sugieren que las plantas también son seres sintientes capaces de sentir estrés de manera similar a los animales comunicarse ampliamente y a un nivel rudimentario distinguir entre el yo y el no yo No hay pruebas científicas de que sientan dolor solo evidencias circunstanciales Se ha planteado que como seres vivos que son se deben reconocer sus derechos como en el caso de los animales En Suiza una ley promulgada en ordena que la dignidad de todas las criaturas incluidas las plantas sea considerada en la investigación Ambiental evitan el uso de productos de origen animal basándose en la premisa de que la captura o cría industrial de animales es perjudicial para el medio ambiente y además insostenible Las dietas basadas en plantas son más sostenibles que las dietas ricas en productos animales puesto que utilizan menos recursos naturales y provocan menor impacto en el medio ambiente A nivel global la ganadería es una de las principales causas de pérdida de biodiversidad y de emisión de gases de efecto invernadero y probablemente la principal fuente de contaminación del agua en los países desarrollados y en vías de desarrollo Por otro lado la agricultura tiene un enorme repercusión negativa sobre la Tierra ya que provoca la reducción de la superficie disponible para la vida silvestre destruye gran número de insectos plantas y animales tanto directamente en la preparación de los terrenos y mediante el uso de plaguicidas u otros métodos para defender los cultivos incluyendo envenenamientos y caza a tiros como por la contaminación de las aguas por los fertilizantes y los plaguicidas y sus efectos negativos sobre la cadena alimenticia Todo ello provoca una pérdida de biodiversidad que no se reduce ni siquiera en aquellos países que valoran y protegen la naturaleza Dietético o vegetarianismo estricto se abstienen por ventajas sobre la salud de consumir cualquier tipo de carne y productos de origen animal como los huevos la leche o la miel Los efectos beneficiosos sobre la salud como la mejora de las condiciones metabólicas en personas con diabetes tipo no son exclusivos de la dieta vegana sino que también se logran con otro tipo de dietas incluyendo la dieta mediterránea la dieta baja en carbohidratos alta en proteínas y la dieta vegetariana Además el riesgo de graves deficiencias nutricionales puede anular estos beneficios para la salud
